Cross-Center Initiatives

Urban's cross-center initiatives highlight work from around the Institute. Please see if your publication fits any of the criteria for the initiatives listed below. You may choose more than one, as appropriate.

Beyond High School: Education and Training

Products that examine policies, programs, or issues related to postsecondary education and training and connecting youth and adults to the workforce.

Specifically, products related to

- access to, affordability of, financing of, and success in higher education;
- job preparation and training, career pathways, or other workforce development approaches for youths and adults;
- adult education or adult English-language learner programs; or
- apprenticeships and other work-based learning opportunities for youths and adults.

Education Policy Program

Products written by or prepared in coordination with Education Policy Program staff and approved for publication within the Program by Matt Chingos.

Inequalities and Mobility

Products that

- mention inequality and/or social or economic mobility in the title or description of work, or
- have a gap or gaps between populations as a major theme or topic (primary or secondary), or
- primarily focus on programs or policies that have clear implications for inequality or mobility.

Kids in Context

Products that are child-focused, but consider children within the broader context, by looking

- across generations (e.g., effect of adult-focused policies on children); or
- across domains, policies, or program siloes (e.g., the effect of health on child educational outcomes); or
- through a rich community contextual lens.

Low-Income Working Families

Products funded under the auspices of the Low-Income Working Families project.

Neighborhoods and Youth Development

Products written by staff from or collaborating with the Neighborhoods and Youth Development team.

Opportunity and Ownership

Products that pertain to assets, debts, wealth, saving, financial capability and products, wealth inequality, or wealth mobility.

Performance Management and Measurement

Products that primarily focus on the practice of performance measurement and management of organizations, including topics related to building an organizational culture of learning, developing logic models or theories of change, identifying and selecting performance indicators, analyzing and using data for continuous program improvement, communicating results to stakeholder groups, performance contracting, and performance budgeting.

Program on Retirement Policy

Products that pertain to aging or retirement.

Program on Immigrants and Immigration

Products that

- focus on immigrants, refugees, children of immigrants, or language access; or
- don't have a clear immigrant focus but include a substantial number of immigrants, refugees, or children of immigrants among the study population, and speak to issues specific to those populations.

Social Determinants of Health

Products that make a connection between a non-health care system or policy and an individual or community/place health or developmental outcome.

State and Local Finance Initiative

Products completed through or in collaboration with the State and Local Finance Initiative.

Tax Policy and Charities

Products that pertain to tax policy surrounding charities.

Washington, DC Research Initiative

Products primarily focused on DC or the DC region, or products with a particular emphasis on DC.
